Foreword

The Annual Staff presents this fourth volume of the Rhododendron as a scenic story, in part, of our year's work. It fails to show three of our best buildings: Central Dining Hall, Demonstration School, and new Girls' Dormitory. Neither does it adequately reveal that more than one thousand students have been taught here during the year.

The Crystal Mount

A mount of crystal formed—
The trees are hid
Beneath the crystal sheen.
A glorious sun reveals
A picture wondrous fair,
So beauteous rare,
As only God can form;
And feeble man,
By word, or pen, or song,
Can ne'er bring forth
The glorious scene
To touch the heart and soul
Of those who ne'er have seen
This wondrous crystal mount.

AUDRY ALPHIN

"Lovely and accomplished."

Audry is one of the very finest. She is intellectual, sweet and lovable. What more can we say? The pleasant smile and cheery greeting she has for everyone, have made a warm spot for her in the hearts of all who know her. We predict for her a successful career as a teacher.

HONORS

Secretary, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.

Pianist, Charter Member of Blan-Dolph Literary Society.

Secretary Calliopean Literary Society.

Member Basketball Team, 1924-'25.

ALICE BRASINGTON

"If joy and duty clash, let duty go to smash."

Alice is individually popular. How can we resist her when she possesses so much of charm, personality, and beauty? To see Alice is to stop, look, and admire. We think the senior class chose wisely and well when they voted Alice Brasington the most beautiful of the many graduates. Her pathway will always be strewn with the remains of broken and discarded masculine hearts.

HONORS

Vice-President, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.

MRS. FANNIE NOEL BANNERMAN

"A kind heart is a fountain of gladness."

In Mrs. Bannerman we find a most noble character. She has gained many friends among teachers and students, who will have a lasting remembrance of a gentle, quiet, loyal, capable girl, pressing toward higher things.

NINA BRICKHOUSE

"We pass for what we are."—Emerson.

Lucky is the person possessing the friendship of "Brick." Her loyalty can be depended upon under all conditions. There are those who will not soon forget the loving attention, cheerfully given, when the girls had the "flu." She is tactful in the management of children—a good pre-requisite for a primary teacher.

HONORS

President, Y. M. C. A. 1924-'25.

Member, Chorus Club.

Critic, Representative, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.

•RHODODENDRON•1925•

ADA BURT

"She has intelligence, perseverance and a will, coupled with an unusual amount of skill."

Ada is a girl who can be depended upon to say and to do the correct thing at the proper time. The same high standard of honor that she brings to her class duties, is evident in her general conduct, from her success is expected.

HONORS

President, Blan-Dolph Literary Society. Vice-President, B. D. L. S. 1924. Representative, B. D. L. S. 1924. Vice-President, Y. W. C. A. 1925. Cabinet Member 1925. Student Editor-in-Chief Rhododendron 1925. Chorus Club 1925.

JAMES B. DULA

"Always do the right thing,
If it takes the skin off."

The outstanding characteristics of James, our President, are that he is loyal, square, and true to his classmates and college friends.

No class member deserves higher words of commendation, for his high ideals, aggressive disposition, and for being a friend to others. This has been his chief aim. Jim believes in doing the big, right thing at all times.

HONORS

President, Senior Class.
Charter Member, Rankin-Wilson Literary Society.

N. ELIZABETH GERMAN

"Her purpose is as true as steel,
And diligence works out her plans."

N. E. is the unobstructive type. She doesn't climb upon the house tops and herald her presence. She has steadily, surely, pursued her way in the normal college in an apparently serene state of mental poise. She has proved herself a good student in all that she undertakes, especially in the art of solving problems in Mathematics. If she is as consistent outside the collegiate portals as within, her success is assured.

HONORS

Charter Member of Blan-Dolph Literary Society.

MINNIE M. HAIRE

"She is gentle, she is shy,
But she has mischief in her eye."

Minnie is big in mind and heart; she has made many friends here. In her junior year she made quite a mark as one of the "stars" in English. She has done well in all activities. We are not afraid to prophesy that Minnie will be successful in the teaching profession and in "the greatest game of all." Our best wishes accompany her all the way.

HONORS

President, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.
Secretary, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.
Charter Member of Blan-Dolph Literary Society.

Secretary, Y. W. C. A.

•RHODODENDRON•1925•

ALICE HORNER

"True as the needle to the point, true the dial to the sun."

The best things are not expressed in words. Such is the case with Alice. She is absolutely dependable and efficient, always duty before pleasure with her. Her quiet unassuming manner together with her sympathy, that deepens as one comes to know her have unfolded as the bud. The charm of her personality has won us.

HONORS

Chaplain, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.
Cabinet member Y. W. C. A.

LOLA KILBY

"Success comes to her who strives."

Lola is studious and diligent worker. She is made of the kind of stuff that the successful ones are. Failure is not on her program.

HONORS

President, Representative, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.
Secretary, Senior Class, 1925.
Member, Art Club.
Member, Tennis Club.
Member, Chorus Club.

MARY KOON

"What is worth doing at all is worth doing well."

Mary is a girl of rare type, and her ingenuity will help her always in right. She gives her whole soul and being to her work, and a duty she never shirks.

HONORS

Chaplain, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.

PEARL KOON

"Great Modesty often hides great merit."

Pearl is a quiet, dignified, and faithful to a degree that commands the admiration of her classmates. A lovable girl whose high sense of honor exceeds the average. She is one of our most studious classmates, and our good wishes follow her into her life's work.

HONORS

President, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.
Cabinet Member of Y. W. C. A.

•RHODODENDRON•1925•

ANNA LAW

"A smile for all, a greeting glad,
An amicable, jolly way she had."
In Anna, the jolliest member of our class, we find a combination of sunshine and laughter. She always meets her tasks and difficulties with a smile. As to her future, it can be nothing but success, whether she enter the teacher's profession or not.

HONORS

Member of Chorus Club.
Member of Tennis Club.
Charter member, Critic, Blan Dolph Literary Society.

MARGARET LITTLE

"It's the songs ye sing and the smiles ye wear
That's a-making the sunshine everywhere."
Margaret is very much interested in voice, and should she choose this for her career she will succeed. However, in whatever corner of this world she may find herself, one need not fear for her. With her wide range of power and possibilities she will add grace to that corner and "make the sunshine everywhere."

HONORS

Member of Y. W. C. A. Choir.
Member, Chorus Club.

CAMERON LANDRETH

"A man of spotless reputation,
Whose word is equal to his hand."
"Cam" is one of the most popular boys in the college, both with his classmates and the faculty. His morals, character and broad unselfish principles are such that nature may stand up and declare to all the world "here is a man."

ARTHUR MOORE

"Say what you have to say,
Be what you are and no other way."
In personality he is a gem; as a man he is a friend. When in a position to render assistance to a classmate or a friend he does so not only willingly but gladly. He is conscientious, possesses a wonderful personality, and an enduring perservance.

HONORS

President, Vice-President, Critic, Rankin-Wilson Literary Society.
Manager Athletics.
Annual Staff.
Charter Member of R. W. L. S.

•RHODODENDRON•1925•

IONE PERKINS

"Much could be said of her if one could read her mind."

Attractive and dainty with just enough indifference thrown in to add spice that's "Perky." She's never too busy for a good time, but between hours of fun there's work. "Perky" is a loyal friend on whom you can always depend—and yet the half has not been told.

AUGUSTUS PETERSON

"Then on, Then on, where duty leads.
My course he onward still."

Here's a good fellow, pleasant and kind. Everybody likes him and he is as reliable as the rising sun. Real service will be rendered in a forceful way when he undertakes the tasks of life.

HONORS

Vice-President, Senior Class 1923-'24.
Historian, Senior Class, 1924-'25.
President, Secretary, Chaplain, Watauga Literary Society.
Charter Member, President, Secretary, Critic, Rankin-Welson Literary Society.
Annual Staff, 1923-'25.

MAUDE PERRY

"From care I'm Free,

Why can't they all be happy like me?"

Maude is a happy-go-lucky type of girl, who never worries, and always comes out on top. She has the "gift of gab," she goes about with that smile of happiness and content which she shares with every one. Industrious and straight-forward in every way is Maude.

CLARICE REECE

"Kind hearts are more than coronets."

Clarice is a quiet, studious, and ambitious, and may be depended upon at all times. She is loved by her friends for her gentle manner, and with her persistent determination, she is bound to win in whatever she attempts.

HONORS

Vice-President, Censor, and Secretary of the Blan-Dolph Literary Society, and Cabinet member of the Y. W. C. A.

RHODODENDRON 1925

NETTIE RICE

"None knew thee but to love Thee,
None named thee but to praise."

We all love Nettie, because of her rare unselfishness and unassuming nature. Although she is sober, quiet and pensive, she has won a place in our hearts. Perhaps a little too reserved and timid yet an all-around good girl who is sure to achieve success in whatever line she may choose.

HONORS

Secretary, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.
Member, Y. W. C. A. Choir.
Member, Chorus Club.

ALBERTA ROCKETT

"A smile for all, a greeting glad, an amiable, jolly way she had."

Alberta has that gift of making herself liked, due to the fact that she has a greeting for every one and is always smiling. Her congeniality and amiable disposition make her welcome wherever she goes. To take her as you find her, she is a friend to all.

HONORS

Treasurer, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.

FLORA THOMAS

"Long may we search before we find a heart so gentle and so kind."

If you are looking for a conscientious worker, here she is. She possesses a very quiet and gentle disposition. Flora is a true and loyal friend, one who believes that in order to have friends one must be a friend. What greater compliment could be paid her.

HONORS

Chaplain, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.
Censor, Blan-Dolph Literary Society.
Y. W. C. A. Cabinet member 1925.

ANNIE L. WALL

"If she will, she will, and you may depend on it, and if she won't she won't and there's an end to it."

Here indeed is a girl who has a strong determination. If you are looking for a conscientious worker, here she is. She is capable of thought and reasoning. We will always remember "Annie" as a worthy and admired friend.

Senior Class History

The Appalachian State Normal School gives two years of regular normal college work, designed especially for Primary, Intermediate, and Grammar Grade teachers. Therefore it is easy to understand why the classes are made up of men and women who have caught a vision of their life work; that of fighting the common foe (ignorance) in this great state of ours. Many of the students have already commenced their life's work, as the result many remain in school or periods of six weeks, three months or more.

We the Junior Normal Class assemble at the Appalachian Training School, August 26, 1923. A meeting was immediately called for the purpose of electing officers and beginning in earnest a class history. The class had its ideals, ambitions, and temptations, coming out with a fine record unashamed in all respects. During the year the class numbered eighty-four, a record breaker of all previous Normal classes.

On August 26, 1924, with the exception of a few members who were added later, the present senior class of nineteen and twenty-five matriculated at the Appalachian Training School. The class now consists of thirty-three members coming from twenty-one counties of North Carolina, extending from Tyrell (seventy six degrees longitude) on the East to Yancey (eighty two degrees longitude) on the West, and from Union on the South to Ashe on the North, or from South Carolina to Virginia, with one student from the (Old Line State). In addition to the thirteen high schools and the A. T. S. the following Colleges are represented: Mississippi State College for Women, East Carolina Teacher's College, Salem College, Flora McDonald College, Concordia College, North Carolina College for Women, Cullowhee Normal School.

All classes in school have their meetings, (business or otherwise). This class is no exception to the general rule; we have met, usually in the History room, discussed matters, appointed committees and dispatched business.

With reference to our social functions we might mention the splendid entertainment tendered us by the Junior Class on Howard's Knob one Monday in Autumn. This trip erased at least one blue Monday from the page of memory for we enjoyed it immensely and will long remember it for the nice jolly time we had together and the many good things we had to eat. Another important social event was the entertainment of the Junior Class by a progressive conversation party at Lovill Home, later going to the Administration building for a radio concert. If the entertained enjoyed it as much as the entertainers, it was a success.

It was during our Senior year that the name of our institution was changed from the Appalachian Training School to the Appalachian State Normal School. It was with a pleasing expectation that we looked forward to this act of the Legislature.

About the midst of our trials and hardships Captain E. F. Lovill was removed from our midst by death. Captain Lovill was one of the greatest friends the institution has ever had. He was for twenty-five years chairman of the board of trustees. We were made to feel that not only had the institution lost a great friend, but we have lost a lovely, friendly handshake that only he could give.

It also falls to our honor to assist the faculty in selecting a standard ring for the institution.

Much more could be said concerning this, the largest Senior Normal class ever to leave the Appalachian State Normal School to enter the service of humanity in the capacity of teachers.

"We know not what the future hath
Of marvel or surprise,
But remember the crown is won,
By him who tries."

—Guss Peterson.

Senior Class Prophecy

In the year nineteen hundred and thirty, I decided to broaden my experience and training by traveling in distant lands. Accordingly, I secured passage on a large vessel bound for India. On my arrival at Calcutta, I was thrilled with the mysterious city; many historic memories of this place kept running through my mind. I visited every place of interest and each day seemed to add new mysteries to my adventure.

One day while I was walking in the country, a man suddenly accosted me, calling me by name. I gazed at him in astonishment. How did this man learn the name of as insignificant person as I? My interest rose still more when he told me other facts about my life. When he invited me into his tent, I obeyed instinctively, not knowing why I did so. The interior of this magician's abode was arranged with many strange things. The whole room was pervaded with an atmosphere of secretiveness and necromancy; the air was heavy with the languorous fume of oriental incense which instantly seemed to transport me from the realm of things as they are into a land of enchantment. My stately host then motioned me to a seat before a large crystal. Seated here trembling from head to foot, a strange numbness began to penetrate my whole being: slowly, slowly, every object except the crystal began to sink into oblivion. For the life of me I could neither rise nor flee from this sorcerer; nothing could I do except gaze with fascination into the crystal. Continually the Indian Magician kept mumbling some enchanting words until I was in a state of somnambulism, hearing only the words, seeing only the crystal, when behold! the image of our class President appeared upon the magic surface.

I could now hear distinctly the words of the Magician: "Due to the influence of friends and illustrious forbears, James Dula will forsake all others and cleave unto the mathematics department of his Alma Mater, becoming its head, in which position he will be recognized as an influence in the college."

Suddenly James disappeared and Anna Law stood in his place.

The sorcerer continued, "Anna Law will be director of the History Department at East Carolina Teachers' College alternating with summer school work at Duke."

The next was Ada Burt. The words came faintly to my ears, "Dr. Ada Burt will pursue her journalistic inclinations and after some years will be found on the editorial staff of the Ladies' Home Journal."

Audry Alphin appeared.

"Audrey will teach piano until she finds that for her there are better things than a career."

Of course Earl Butler came next.

"Earl Butler will be the father confessor of us all, as a successful lawyer, the whole class will feel that he knows everything, so can sympathize."

The image of Essie Mae Outlaw, Minnie Haire, C. H. Landreth, Annie Lee Caudle, tone Perkins and Elizabeth German covered the whole crystal.

"Those doomed to eternal teacherhood you see before you," were the words I heard.

Arthur Moore loomed larger than ever.

"Dr. A. K. Moore will be the leading scientist of his day."

The face of Pearl Koon smiled upon us.

"Pearl will head the Home Economics Department at Columbia University."

Margaret Little's jolly face beamed on the crystal.

The magician's voice never faltered in its low subdued tones: "Margaret Little will show in after years the cups she has won for driving in successful automobile races (if she is too modest her husband will show them)."

Flora Thomas appeared.

"A work that has done much for suffering humanity is the movement carried through by Flora Thomas, where she ministers to the heathen in Africa with untiring energy."

• RHODODENDRON • 1925 •

Alice Brasington, Clarice Reece, Lula Love, Anne Dula, and Alverta Rockett appeared together.

The magician continued his discourse, "The world must have its share of good housewives and mothers. Where else would these be happy except in their own homes? There you will find them happy, loving, sweet and considerate as ever."

When these images faded, Walter E. Wilson became visible.

"Walter E. Wilson will be a great evangelist."

I next beheld Ron Davis.

"After much study in the field of education, Ron will be superintendent of Public Instruction of North Carolina."

Augustus Peterson appeared.

"Mr. Peterson will be noted for his work in education."

I looked steadily and there was Margaret Love.

"Margaret Love will be the first woman senator from her district and will be in politics until she dies."

While I was wondering who would be next Alice Horner appeared.

"Alice is another of the class of twenty-five who will be the victim of circumstance, the heiress of millions."

I had only a second to rejoice because of Alice's luck when Lola Kilby came upon the scene.

"Lola Kilby was bred, brought up, and educated for a French teacher and a French teacher she will be in a leading college in the Middle West."

Who next? Mary Koon and Nettie Rice.

"Nettie Rice will become a great singer. Mary Koon will accompany her on the violin."

Mrs. Bannerman's figure flashed upon the crystal.

The magician continued continued, "Mrs. Bannerman will become a brilliant lecturer, a staunch supporter of the modern girl and her rights. All over the world she will be received with great enthusiasm."

Last to appear was Annie Wall.

"Annie Wall will be a well known supervisor of teachers. Letters will pour into her office every day from distinguished teachers, asking for advice."

The magician ceased speaking. The spell broke. Presently I was my natural self again and the magician nodded for me to depart saying, "I could prophesy something good for you but it would be useless."

—Lena Spencer.

Class Poem.

Under the light of the mellow moon,
Where scenes around me are all so grand
Here in the beautiful city of Boone,
A school so great our State has planned.

These mountains with their monster base,
Their rugged grandly towering peaks:
They hold a wondrous unique place.
'Mong nature's strongly luring freaks.

And when upon these scenes I gaze,
I lose myself and feel so small;
As it seems amid their azure haze,
There dwells the mighty good of all.

Away from the busy city's din,
Away from extremes of fashion's lure,
Where least combats with wisdom ken
There stands our Normal School so sure.

Thankful to God for his bountiful grace,
And for Appalachian Normal's plan;
He gave to us this wonderful place
All to be used for the good of man.

The books we've learned, the friends we've made
Will long remain in our memory;
The thoughts brought forth, the kind words said
Will live in our hearts through eternity.

Our hearts are the soil, our thoughts the seeds,
If pure thoughts are ours, our God will bless;
Useful our lives if filled with good deeds,
And grateful we'll be for our A. S. N. S.

We have not finished, but only begun
To climb toward the heights for which we yearn.
Until we reach life's setting sun
More wisdom true we still shall learn.

—Audry Alphin.

Last Will and Testament of the Normal Class of '25

We, the class of 1925 of Appalachian State Normal School, being of strong bodies and of sound minds (that is to say, as sound as could be expected after enduring so many hardships) realize that we shall soon depart from this college life. As one who, in preparing to start on his last journey, wills his most cherished possessions to those whom he loves, so we, the Seniors, before we leave and start on the journey of life, bestow certain gifts on those we leave behind.

We, the class of '25, do hereby declare this to be our last will and testament.

Item 1. To Alma Mater we bequeath our never ending love and devotion—may she ever hold a warm place in our hearts.

Item 2.—To the founders of this institution who have so faithfully served the cause of education, we leave our unbounded gratitude, appreciation, and support. May they long continue in their great work of service to mankind, and may this school continue to prosper under their guiding hand.

Item 3.—To the faculty in general we will our unmeasured esteem and gratitude for their unbounded kindness toward us and for every attainment they have helped us reach; moreover, there are certain individual bequests.

1. To Dr. Rankin to be delivered in chapel a message from the hearts of many speakers.
2. To professors Smith and Wright, a pitch pipe to be used when the occasion demands, in pitching "Down in Happy Valley" and "Brudder Brown."
3. To Mr. Downum, a new bottle of ink to replace what we have used in his office. May his fountain pen ever be full and he be able to use it.
4. To Professor Greer, we leave our many thanks for his return to us when we so much needed him.
5. To Mrs. Flowe, we each leave a copy of lesson plans, hoping they will be of help to those who do practice teaching in the future.
6. To Professor Wilson, to wear on his next exploring trip, we will a pair of new overalls, having on them a red patch and being exactly the same size as the ones he wore on the former occasion. May they fit him nicely when he explores another "hole in the ground."
7. To Miss Rouse, our gratitude for her extreme patience with us in Public School Music. May her next class be more "harmoniously inclined".
8. We donate to Professors Kent and Howell each a Morris Chair in which to sit during chapel.

Item 4. To the Junior Normal Class we will our surplus dignity and reserve; also our hardships and senior privileged. To them extend our best wishes, with the hope that in filling our places they may make a record worth leaving.

Item 5. Lola Kilby wills to Lucy Gatling her ability to bluff, so the latter may forever be free from the pest called study.

Item 6. To Reid Wallace, Arthur Moore donates his oratorical powers provided he needs it.

Item 7. To Nannie Lou Thommason, Clarice Reece wills the joy and privilege of having dates on Saturday nights with a member of the faculty provided it is not the wrong "chap."

Item 7. Mary Koon wills all her worries over practice teaching to Nellie Blakeley.

Item 9. Anna Lew wills to Sally Henderson some fifty pounds of her flesh, hoping that Sally may thus be capable of holding an important place in the Senior Class next year.

Item 10. Earl Butler wills to Gale McMillan the privilege of sitting in the parlor on Sunday nights and not being disturbed by another couple.

Item 11. Lena Redfern and Anne Dula bequeath their privilege of talking with the faculty to Nancy Hunter and Flora Thomas.

♦ RHODODENDRON ♦ 1925 ♦

Item 12. Alice Horner and Nettie Rice will to Grace Carpenter and Ada Mae White their power to "vamp" the men.

Item 13. James Dula, after careful consideration, bequeaths to Dewey Mast a pitcher of "Zip," with the hope that Dewey will be as greatly benefitted by it as he himself has been, in that it has supplied him with the necessary fat and energy for withstanding the joys and trials of being class president.

Item 14. Elizabeth German and Lena Spencer will their musical ability to Rosada McAnulty and Elsie Farthing.

Item 15. Pearl Koon and Margaret Little will their places on the tennis court to Alice Gregory and Madge Reeves hoping that they will become champion tennis players.

Item 16. Since Alice Brasington and Annie Wall have decided to be old maid school teachers, they gladly bequeath all their cooking recipes and household knowledge to Miss Hewitt and Sallie Henderson with the hope that it will be of much value to them in their future life.

Item 17. Nettie Rice and Mary Koon, without any hesitation whatever, bequeath to Hallie Baker the number of chicken wings which fell to their lot at Lovill Home, together with their liking for some other part of the chicken.

Item 18. Ada Burt, Walter E. Wilson, and Augustus Peterson will to certain members of the Junior Class all the pleasures that accompany the management of "The Rhododendron."

Item 19. Finally, to avoid a painful scene, we take the opportunity of leaving to all a fond farewell.

History of the Senior High School Class

All through the ages great stress has been laid upon the most important events in the history, and we, the last class to graduate from the High School Department of the Appalachian Training School, (It is now the Appalachian State Normal) feel that our history can be classed as an important event, and in our opinion too much information can not be jotted down of the happenings of our five happy years. We shall try to relate the most important.

We met for the first time August 22, 1921 in the old Administration building with great eagerness to begin our career. We set ourselves to the task of learning. Our number was seventy-three.

After much discussion we elected Edward Osborne president, and chose silver-gray and garnet for our colors and red carnation for our flower. Nothing of unusual interest happened that year except the receiving of our diplomas from the eighth grade in May.

Next year sixty-four boys and girls met at the Science Hall with the title of Freshmen. Our president not returning we elected Fred Looper, president; Margaret Linney, Vice-President; David Moretz, Secretary; Louise Coffey, Poet; and Blanche Smith, Historian. We were indeed zealous freshmen for we had made up our minds to excel in the class room, in athletics, and in deportment.

In 1923 we again took up our school work, happy in having the name of Sophomores. Most of our members had returned with sufficient new members to total ninety-four. About the middle of the year our president was forced to leave on account of illness and we elected Gale McMillan.

Summer vacation over, we came back buoyant with new hope for our Junior year. Some of our class officers did not return so we elected Ruth Robbins, Testator; David Moretz, Prophet; Howard Ashley, Secretary; and Hubert Coffey, Cartoonist. The tragedy of our school career was the death of one of our members, Maggie Cox. We remembered her with sincere appreciation, and extended sympathy to her stricken home.

With the coming of Spring, interest centered around preparation for the Junior-Senior Reception, then came the excitement and fear of failures on examination. The effort, success, and the year had closed.

Seniors! Eighty-seven members returned in the Fall, but seven dropped out. So we now have a class of eighty, the largest to graduate from the A. T. S. Early in the year we changed our class colors to green and white, our flower to Madonna Lily, and our motto to "Live to serve." On February the 22nd, 1925, the Junior class delightfully entertained us at a reception. The average grade of the girls through the four years scored higher than the boys; but the average age of the girls is 18; average age of the boys is 20. Now as we are nearing the end of our high school work and as we look back on the days spent at The Appalachian Training School we are beginning to realize that they were the happiest days of our lives.

Last Will and Testament

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
TOWN OF BOONE

APPALACHIAN STATE NORMAL

Friends of the Senior Class, we have called you together on this occasion to listen to the formal reading of the last will and testament of the Class of '25.

As an aged man, making preparation to start on his last journey, wills his cherished possessions to those whom he loves, so we, the Seniors, as we prepare to start on the journey of life, donate certain gifts to those we leave behind.

Item 1. To our Alma Mater we bequeath our love and devotion—may she ever hold first place in our hearts.

Item 2. To the faculty in general, we will our unmeasured esteem and gratitude for every attainment they have helped us to reach, and our thanks for their kindness and patience.

1. To Professor Downum, a Latin class who will get to the recitation room on time.

2. To Prof. Greer, the love of all the class.

3. To Dr. Rankin, a student body that will not stand in the halls.

4. To Prof. Logan, we will a class of girls who enjoy "Pretty Propositions."

Item 3. To the Junior Class, because of our love and admiration for them, we do will, and bequeath our surplus dignity and sophistication, together with our assets, hardships, and responsibilities. We also will them our honors and special privileges, which are so much desired in the eyes of the Juniors, and so little appreciated once they are obtained by the Seniors.

Item 4. To the Sophomores, we will our "sisterly affection" to be used only on the Freshmen-to-be.

Item 5. To the Freshmen, we will the motto "Green hut growing."

Item 6. In addition to above will, there are certain personal effects that must be disposed of.

1. Nora Mast wills her dignity to Pearl Parsons.

2. Bettie Williams wills her "church interest" to Ola Dotson.

3. Ruth Benfield wills two feet three inches of her height to Katrina Walsh, so that she may never be known as "Dumps."

4. Louise Icenhour leaves her good humor to Margaret Hahn.

5. Maud Moody leaves all her cast-off Senior beaux to Una Corpening.

6. Gordon Taylor leaves Mary Anna Trivett to the next flirt.

Item 7. Lastly, we, the members of the Senior Class do hereby appoint the Junior Class to execute this will, and request them to see that each person receives his property.

In witness whereof, we set our hands and affix our seal, this the eighth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five, hereby revoking all other wills carelessly made, wheresoever it may have been probated.

High School Senior Class Poem

To-day we close our High School days,
Pausing with a tender thought,
We think of all the benefits
Which to us this School has brought.

Memories pleasant we shall have
Of the four short years just past;
Though now to us the future calls
We'll remember to the last.

Friends here we've gained will not forsake,
Future pathways they will cheer;
And both in joy and sorrow too
Aids they'll be throughout each year.

And now to us the great world calls
All our dreams to realize;
Higher our work we'll still pursue
For success in future lies.

To faithful be to A. N. S.
Always glad we all shall strive;
And to our Alma Mater true—
We, the Class of '25.

—Louise Coffey.

Junior Class History

Let us now cease pondering over our textbooks and gaze backward for a moment upon the bygone days of our sojourn as High School Juniors.

Having completed our sophomore studies we entered once more into the regular routine of school life on August twenty-sixth. After we had well entered into active pursuits of our various studies, we summoned together all Juniors, both old and new, and organized the present Junior class. We re-elected our former president along with other officers, some of whom were our last year's classmates; others were new members of the Institution.

Now, not many days sped by until we had organized a class of about thirty knowledge seekers. It was at this point that we launched our ships and started forth into the sullen almost impenetrable sea of knowledge. It is at the farthest shore of this huge expanse that we hope some day to anchor; yet we are cognizant that this has not always been a smooth, placid course of travel. Sometimes, gloomy obstacles stared us in the face, but to these we paid the least possible heed; and still we are sailing on and on at full mast.

Ambition: Name or even picture a class with greater ambition than the Junior class; a more aspiring body could not be found. After we are reminded of the familiar old quotation, "He who builds beneath the stars, builds too low," our goals of efficiency and achievement are set in tune with this ideal. They are to be realized only when we have crossed the sea of school education and have become the greatest possible service and usefulness to the institution which have prepared us, to our state and to our nation.

We now realize that we are nearing the end of this year's work, nearing the end of a school year that is dear to the hearts of each of us. In the future we shall recall these days as happy memories; may our numerous faults imprint no embarrassing mark upon us, and may we remember none but pleasant things of one another.

At least, if we met with any measure of success, if we have accomplished any good, if we have learned to master any of those problems with which we have dealt, it has been by the patient assistance and guidance of our teachers. To these, we are thankful; and upon them, we bestow our gratest appreciation and best wishes, for every possible happiness.

—Jay L. Curtiss.

Jokes

Ramsey—Do you know I can sing grand opera with a falsetto voice?
Brownie—That's nothing. My father can chew corn with a false set o' teeth.

Shang P.—(At her first glimpse of the sea)—Ain't it astonishing Wade?
Who'd ever thought there could be as much water as that?
Wade—Yes, and remember dear, you only see what's on top.

Earl J.—Is Sallie H. fond of an argument?
Ann G.—I should think so. Why, she wont eat anything that agrees with her.

Prof. Logan—In what part of the Bible is it taught that a man should have only one wife?
Billy—I guess it is the part that says that a man can not serve more than one master.

C. F. Dixon—You know I love you: Will you marry me?
Ada May White—My dear boy, I just refused you a week ago.
Dixon—Oh! Was that you?

Anna Wall walked into a store and dropped her bag on the counter. "Give me a chicken," she said.
"Do you want a pullet?" the storekeeper asked.
Wall—No, I want to carry it.

Alberta R.—I understand that in the class play Anna Law has quite a difficult part.
Pearl Koon—Difficult? Why she doesn't say a word.
Alberta—Well isn't that difficult for Anna Law?

Mr. Smith—Did you send his present back when you broke his engagement?
Thomasson—Of course not. Did you send back the silver cup that you won when you resigned from the golf club?

Baker—(Reading aloud the conclusion of a long letter post marked Chapell Hill, N. C.)—And when I get my sheep skin, I'll come home and marry the sweetest girl in all the world.
Jean W.—What a dirty trick after being engaged to me?

Co-Ed—What would you do if a Doctor was flirting with your wife?
Ha, Hopeful—I'd eat an apple every day.

Sophomore Class History

On August 26, 1923, a number of inexperienced and bashful boys and girls gathered in the registrar's office to be enrolled as freshmen in the Appalachian Training School.

Our class was not exempted from the usual teasing and ridicule that befall a freshmen class. But we did not allow the jesting of our school mates to weaken our determination. For we had entered school with the resolution to do our best, and not to be satisfied with just passing our work, so we settled down to work, to study, and to succeed.

As all the other classes were having meetings for electing officers and for choosing their flowers and mottos, we thought this must be the correct thing to do, so we followed their example.

In the fall of 1924 most of us, now sophomores, returned to our school. This year we did not have to undergo the ridicule of freshmen, for we, bloody sophomores, could now be the investigators of the jokes. Even though we had been promoted to a higher class we were still satisfied with our choice of officers; and were yet willing to pursue our motto, "We will find a way or make one."

If the members of our class realize our ambition, we will have friends preparing themselves to be Physicians, Lawyers, Nurses, Dentists, Stenographers, Preachers, Writers, and Statesmen. And if we do fulfill our aspirations we will owe our success to the instructors who have been so patient with us during our freshmen and sophomore years.

Jokes

"Girls," Prof. Smith remarked sentimentally, "are prettier than men."
"Why naturally," exclaimed Perkins. "No," he gently corrected, artificially."

"Who told you to set that wallpaper on the wall," roared Prof. Williams.
Workman—"Your wife, sir."
Prof. Williams—"Pretty isn't it?" he replied.

White and Brick are pretty thick, aint they?
Mrs. Bannerman—Yes, both of them.

THREE AGES OF A WOMAN

15 to 25—The Muddle age.
35 to 45—The Middle age.
50 on—The Meddle age.

Prof. W. (at choir practice)—"All right girls, all together now—'Christ is born on page five.'"

Mrs. Flowe (in principles of Ed)—"President Coolidge is so democratic."
Marie M.—"Oh! I thought he was a Republican."

Homesick Freshie writing home—"Dear father, please send me permission to come home by return mail."

At a party a prize was offered to the one making the worst face. The judge went to Alice B. sitting in the corner and said, "I think you have won the prize, allow me to—"

"Excuse me," Alice said haughtily, "I wasn't playing."

Nettie Rice—Do you know why we call our native language the mother tongue?
Richard P.—"Because father never gets a chance to use it."

This space is left blank. Thus it is better than some of the jokes. NOW LAUGH.

Mary Koon—Can you tell me what makes the Tower of Pisa lean?
Margaret Little—I don't know or I would take some myself.

Jessie Oliver—Why did the ghost in Hamlet understand Latin?
Rom D.—Because Latin is a dead language.

Spend Your Vacation In The Mountain

Now is the time to make your plans for the summer outing.

These lines, popularly known as "The Narrow Gauge," pierce the most attractive vacation grounds in the Southeast. Extending from Johnson City, Tenn., to Boone, North Carolina, they cover the greatest variety of natural scenery east of the Rockies, within so short a distance.

The section of Western North Carolina served by the "Narrow Gauge" affords all the attractiveness of the ideal vacation land; altitude, climate, rugged mountains, virgin forests, and beautiful streams where trout abound.
